Chapter 1 Three Questions

Exercise D)

1) The first question was, "What is the best time to start something?". The following were the responses to the question:

- To make a schedule.
- Do what seemed important in the moment.
- Need of a council of ministers to guide.
- Fortune tellers could help.

2) As the answers to the Emperor's questions were varied, he was not convinced and no award was given.

3) The unique thing about the ascetic was that he would meet no one other than ordinary people.

4) The wounded man was the Emperor's rival. He wanted to take revenge from the Emperor because the king had killed his brother and annexed his estate.

5) The answers to the questions were not given by the ascetic but found by the emperor himself. He did not answer the day before because he knew something would happen that would make the emperor realise all about it himself.
